

EMPLOYER VIRTUAL WORKSHOP SERIES

WORKPLACE BULLYING

Recognizing It and How to Effectively Address the Situation

Tuesday, February 7, 2023 | 1:00 PM

School playgrounds are not the only settings for bullying. Such situations can arise at work, too, resulting in a hostile work environment. Nobody should have to endure it.

Join us in February for a free, virtual workshop on effectively handling such harassment at work. The key for leaders is to launch intentional and crucial conversations about bullying, including the identification of common workplace bullying characteristics, sharing insights into addressing such situations, and imparting change-based knowledge to end bullying on the job.

WORKSHOP HIGHLIGHTS:

- Common characteristics of workplace bullying
- Effects of bullying on targeted employees and others
- Role of culture in the incidence of workplace bullying
- Strategies for HR professionals to identify and defuse workplace bullying
- Creation of an anti-bullying policy at your organization

YOUR HOSTS:

Nancy Finazzo, PhD

Nancy, a former target of workplace bullying, is a leading anti-bullying advocate. She is a higher education professional with more than 20 years of experience in research, planning and performance excellence, and the author of her dissertation entitled "The Impact of Bullying on Women Administrators in Higher Education."

Karen Bathanti, President, OakMac SHRM

Karen has more than 25 years of experience in strategic and operational human resources, leading teams to optimize their efficiency, while fostering a collaborative and accountable workplace. She also serves on a number of boards, including Martha T. Berry Foundation.
